

EMPORT: a Portuguese course for entrepreneurs who want to grow

EMPORT program is an on-line tool to promote employment and business access in Portuguese-speaking countries to European citizens.

The Portuguese course is based on the real needs of businesses and uses technology resources to create a dynamic learning method based on animations, images, sound files, etc. that put students in real situations related to the business world and help them become familiar with the culture and ways of relating to each of the Portuguese-speaking countries.

The project rationale is based on the rapid growth of some notable countries like Brazil, but also those less spoken lusophone countries as Angola and Mozambique, which in recent years have become engines of economic and social development in Africa. The project promoters would like to train employers and Europeans to know the language and customs of those countries so they can carry successful business with them.

In addition to Portuguese language course, EMPORT website includes economic and cultural information on the countries and recommendations on how to behave during a business meeting in East Timor, which are the most dynamic sectors in Cape Verde or places that you must visit on your trip to Angola. On its website users will also find a wide range of educational resources for learning Portuguese.

The program was developed with funding from the European Union, within the Lifelong Learning Programme and has involved organizations and universities from Spain, Portugal, Brazil, Italy, UK and Germany.
